Battle 1 : 轉承語

Here's the way stop-motion animation works. Take a picture of a model. Then pose slightly differently and take another photo. You'll need to repeat this many times and make small changes each time. It'll take a while, 36 you'll need to move everything by hand. In the end, you'll have lots of photos. Play these photos quickly as a video, and the model will look like it's moving. It's a way to make movie magic!

A 36. (A) for 因為

(B) with 不能+句子

(C) though 前不頓, (D) while

註：, though=however

Battle 2 : ed → 人 ing → 事物

People are often curious about how different animals sleep. They might feel __11__ when they read some of the following amazing facts about animal sleeping habits. __12__ most animals, giraffes sleep very little. They curl their long necks and __13__ their heads on their hips. Groups of sea otters float on their backs and hold hands while sleeping. As to dolphins, only half their brain is asleep at one time! When one half of their brain is asleep, __14__ half stays awake. Some migratory birds like Alpine swifts keep flying while they're asleep. All these __15__ ways of sleeping seem incredible to humans. Yet, these are just examples to show us that nature often works in __16__ ways. The wide variety of sleeping habits in the animal kingdom shows how different creatures have different ways of avoiding danger.

11. (A) astonish (B) astonished (C) astonishing (D) astonishingly

Battle 3: 分構

However much people like the boars, though, they are still more than just normal pigs: they're big, wild animals. The number of boars in the city grows each year, so they're beginning to cause problems. They can and will eat anything, 44 they often go through trash cans for food. Some people have 45 been attacked by them.

44. (A) mean (B) to mean (C) meaning = which means (D) meant
