With the rise of internet technology, cellphones have been playing an important role in modern people's lives. The iPhones developed by Apple are even 41 with making the whole world change for the better. In fact, nowadays people 42 to depend on cellphones to meet their needs of all kinds. Cellphones allow them to communicate with others better because of those powerful messaging apps and eye-catchy emojis or stickers. Also, cellphones help us gain more knowledge by 43 us to the things we are interested in within just a few seconds. We no longer have to spend hours 44 for information we need for our homework or reports.

However, a coin has two sides. There are also problems that are 45 to cellphones. Take young cellphone users for example. More and more young people have become so addicted to cellphones that they can't control the 46 to check their LINE or Instagram messages whenever they want. What's worse, they feel so comfortable making friends through these messaging apps that gradually they might forget how to 47 to face-to-face interaction in the real world. If this problem continues, they may even experience a in real life communication and end up having very few "real" friends.

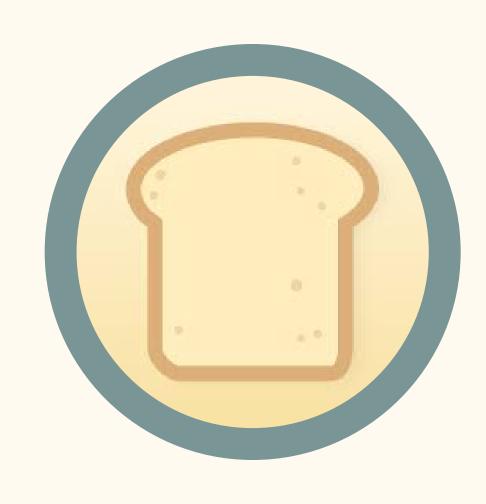

We can't __49 the fact that cellphones do bring us more fun and make our lives more convenient. But with these pros and cons, modern people are __50 whether they should still rely on their beloved cellphones so much. Hope all human beings know how to weigh both the benefits and impacts of cellphones and have the wisdom to handle this question wisely.
