People tend to lie on daily bases. Some lie in order to get themselves out of embarrassing or awkward situations. Others make false excuses just to avoid the troubles that they might have 11 with if they tell the truth. In fact, lying has become such a natural act for us that it may even be considered as an innate quality of human nature.

In order to 12 the truth under the many layers of false stories, researchers have sought ways to tell when the person you are talking to is lying. The first step is to look for hints based on one's body language. People usually feel uncomfortable and 13 their use of gestures when they are not being honest. That is to say, if a person acts unnaturally stiff when they are talking to you, there's a good chance that he or she may be 14 the truth. Also, liars may seem to lack facial expressions while they are talking because they are afraid that they might leave tracks when they speak. To be more specific, researchers have noticed that when a person is cheating, his or her eyeballs would tend to roll towards the right, meaning that they are making up stories in their heads 15 telling the truth. By following these principles, it is hoped that even kids can detect a lie easily.

Facebook, the social network service that started in a Harvard University dormitory just six years ago, is growing at a dizzying rate around the globe, surging to nearly 500 million users, from 200 million users 15 months ago.

It is pulling even with Google-owned Orkut in India, 26 only a year ago, Orkut was more than twice as large as Facebook. In the last year, Facebook has grown eightfold, to eight million users, in Brazil.

In country after country, Facebook is displacing other social networks. In Britain, Facebook made the 27 popular Bebo all but irrelevant. Facebook also forced AOL to sell the site at a huge loss two years after it bought it for $850 million. In Germany, Facebook surpassed Studi- VZ, 28 until February was the dominant social network there.

Just over two years ago, Facebook was available only in English. Still, nearly half of its users were outside the United States, and its 29 was strong in Britain, Australia and other English- speaking countries.

With nearly two-thirds of all Internet users in the United States signing up on Facebook, the company has 30 international expansion.

The 31 of expanding the site overseas fell on Javier Olivan, a 33-year-old Spaniard . Mr. Olivan led an innovative 32 to have Facebook users translate the site into more than 80 languages. Other Web sites and 33 companies had used volunteers.

The task was immense. Facebook not only encouraged users to translate parts of the site, but also let other users fine-tune those translations or pick among 34 translations. Nearly 300,000 users 35.

“Nobody had done it at the scale that we were doing it,” Mr. Olivan said.

The effort paid off. Now about 70 percent of Facebook’s users are outside the United States. The number of users more than tripled in Mexico, to 11 million, and it more than quadrupled in Germany, to 19 million. (By Miguel Helft from the New York Times)

What do vampires, werewolves, and teenage love have in common? 46, a series of four books written by Stephanie Meyer. More than 100 million copies of the books have been sold worldwide since the first novel, Twilight, was published in 2005, and three of the books have been made into movies that have earned over $1 billion.

The Twilight saga tells the story of Isabella Swan, a 17-year-old teenager who moves to the town of Forks to live with her father and soon falls in love with a mysterious classmate, Edward Cullen. 47. The Cullen clan are unlike other vampires in that they feed on animal rather than human blood. Bella also becomes close with Jacob Black, a teenage member of a local Native American tribe who later transforms into a werewolf. 48.

Throughout the four novels, Twilight, New Moon, Eclipse, and Breaking Dawn, Bella tries to convince Edward to turn her into a vampire by biting her but not sucking all of her blood. 49. In addition, vampires do not age, which makes it necessary for the Cullens to move around a lot to avoid suspicion from the public, and Bella would not be able to see her family anymore.

50 and set a record by grossing $30 million from its midnight screenings. The adaptation of the final book, Breaking Dawn, will be split into two movies, with the first scheduled to premiere in November 2011. (by Jason W. Crockett from Sanmin News Messenger)

Children of the fragile forest gather around
Where bird song seems to be the loudest sound
A place called Summer, green as you could please
A place where we all proudly hug the trees.

Hug trees for the walnuts and sweet apples
For the shade above small country chapels
For giving squirrel and crow a place to live
For the priceless gift of oxygen they give.

Follow your feet across a woodland floor
Beneath the tall and ancient sycamore
Under redwood, under tall blue pine
Come with me and form an endless line.

Join the boy whose name is simply ME
Take your turn and hug a mighty tree
A wish we cast upon an August breeze
A dream to cross the seven sacred seas.

Release it now, just like a big balloon...
A prayer to reach the mountains of the moon
To citizens of Earth alas we say
Go find yourself a tree to hug today!

And if a grownup says Don't be a fool!
Or Is that what they're teaching you in school
Just find this poem and read this simple rhyme
It's cool to HUG a TREE from time to time!

Children this is how the world can be
Making Earth plan A and not plan B
Wear Change! Share Change! Sing Change! Bring Change
And start by hugging a tree!

- (A) He got a lot of money illegally.
- (B) He betrayed his country by revealing top secrets to enemy countries.
- (C) He was responsible for the deaths of thousands of people.
- (D) He planned to overthrow the government.

55. Which of the following statement is wrong?

- (A) Comrade Duch didn't admit he had anything to do with the mass killing in Cambodia.
- (B) The judges didn't totally believe Comrade Duch.
- (C) Comrade Duch committed the crime around 40 years ago.
- (D) The victims of Khmer Rouge murder and torture amount to two million people.

56. Why did the tribunal catch people's attention ?

- (A) It was the first time Cambodians attended a UN backed tribunal.
- (B) It was the first time an important Khmer Rouge figure was declared guilty.
- (C) People came to see Comrade Duch be pulled out toenails.
- (D) Cambodians wanted to save Comrade Duch.
